Fun for the whole family!

LONDON, July 18, 2023 – London Symphonia’s popular Family Cushion Concerts are back this summer with free performances of Musical Time Machine at four London Public Library Branches across the city.

Join London Symphonia musicians as they take kids on a time-traveling discovery of a wide range of musical styles from Rock to Classical, jazz, and video games.

All performances are inclusive and participant centred. In addition to instrument demonstrations, kids can clap along to some favourite songs as they go on a musical time machine journey that stretches from today to long, long ago.

“We are thrilled to share our passion for music with young children and all members of the family,” said April Voht, Executive Director of London Symphonia. “Much has been written about how introducing music to kids at an early age can help spark creativity. Our goal is to help parents instill a lifelong connection to music in their children.

“We are deeply grateful to London Symphonia’s generous donors who make our Family Cushion Concerts possible and the London Public Library for making these concerts readily accessible to the community.”
